NEW RESOURCE: Diversity & Inclusion TeleTalks

Have you visited UNT’s Diversity and Inclusion Virtual Training page yet? In addition to the curated webinars already available, UNT’s Diversity and Inclusion TeleTalks are now fully open for business and available as a system-wide resource for all UNT World team members.

Created in partnership with UNT’s Administrative Services and UNT System HR’s Organizational Development and Engagement (ODE) team, these videos of Equity and Diversity Conference and Unlikely Allies experts facilitate active learning with quizzes in the learning management system for which all employees can receive professional development credit. Instructions are included for accessing these sessions, which are available to UNT, UNT Dallas, HSC and UNT System Administration employees. UNT faculty may contact diversity.inclusion@unt.edu or submit a training request to discuss using these resources in your curriculum.

Diversity and Inclusion thanks Ashley Reyes (Administrative Services) and Suzanne Gravois (ODE) for their innovation, teamwork and collaborative spirit in providing these valuable resources to UNT World. Want to stay in the know about upcoming diversity and inclusion efforts and other happenings in the Division of Institutional Equity and Diversity? Follow @DiversityUNT on Twitter and subscribe to the Division’s newsletter Culture Connection here.

Celebrate Asian Pacific American Heritage Month

May is Asian Pacific American Heritage Month! API cultures form an important part of not only our history as a country, but also who we are as a people. Understanding this part of our cultural heritage can help underline the fact that despite small differences, we are a country of immigrants bound together by the marriage of cultures.

Check out the PBS documentary series Asian Americans which premieres May 11, and explore the contributions and challenges of APIs.
