HSC’S ‘DR. MICROBE’ UPDATES UNT WORLD ON COVID-19 IN DFW.

Eager to learn the latest on coronavirus in Dallas-Fort Worth? Our own Dr. Diana Cervantes of UNT Health Science Center has earned the respectful nickname “Dr. Microbe” in local and national media for her accurate, science-based updates on COVID-19 as a public health expert and Director of Epidemiology at HSC. Dr. Cervantes joined our We Are North Texas podcast last week and provided a thorough update to UNT World. She discussed what led to DFW’s recent spike in cases, shared what activities are high-risk vs. low-risk, and provided tips on how to best protect yourself from infection in one of the nation’s coronavirus hotspots.

Stand Up for Your Health
Most of us spend most of our day sitting down. But sitting all day can have negative affects on our health, including increasing our chances of developing chronic health conditions like obesity, cancer, cardiovascular disease, and diabetes.
