Dean Pérez joined the UNT Dallas faculty in July 2019, overseeing the largest school on the northern Dallas campus with 1,800 students. He received his MD, DO and MBA, is an entrepreneur at heart. He is using his background in healthcare and experience in start-ups to transform Fort Worth into a hub of entrepreneurial activity, not only through the work of HSC, but also through his work in the CSHC. He is not only creating solutions for healthy communities, but is also creating economic opportunity for our region. In our latest episode of "We Are North Texas Podcast" featuring a raw, open conversation with Marilu Vargas Howard, director of the University of North Texas System’s efforts to spotlight Hispanic leadership, culture and achievement, we hear about the University of North Texas System’s efforts to spotlight Hispanic leadership, culture, and achievement. We start with "Mi Familia," a five-part video series: "Mi Familia." This series presents a special "Mi Familia" video series highlighting Hispanic heritage. The video series celebrates Hispanic culture and achievements and presents the story of an individual to the community to solve complex problems and bring new innovations to market. He is not only creating solutions for healthier communities, but also creating economic opportunity for our region.
